In 1944 King MICHAEL of Romania had General ANTONESCU arrested and the King stated at that time that Romania would fight with the Western Powers against Germany. At this time SIMA and his followers were freed from the concentration camps in Germany by the Germans and sent to Vienna, Austria, where the German Government set up a Romanian Government in exile to fight against King MICHAEL and the Western Powers. The subject advised that when he was in Vienna he refused to fight with SIMA and his group and that time was fighting against the Western Powers. SIMA instead took a job with a Jewish group in Vienna that he had some of SIMA's relatives who were at that time fleeing to Vienna from the Germans and Communists who at that time were taking over Romania.
